Aldi UK and Ireland CEO Giles Hurley, LONDON, Sept 27 (Reuters) - German discount supermarket group Aldi will invest 1.3 billion pounds ($1.8 billion) in Britain over the next two years, opening a new store every week to try to accelerate its rapid growth in market share, it said on Monday. The retailer plans to open another 100 new stores in Britain, expand its logistics infrastructure, including a new distribution centre in central England, and invest in technology. It will create more than 2,000 new British jobs next year, adding to the 7,000 permanent roles created over the past two years. BETTER PLACEDHurley said although no UK retailer could be immune from current supply chain disruption, Aldi was better placed than rivals. Aldi's limited product range means it has a smaller supplier base, while the majority of products it sources for its British stores come from local suppliers and manufacturers. "That means our supply chain is just that little bit shorter and easier to control," he said. Hurley also noted that the majority of its drivers are directly employed. "It's very much business as usual. In order to check the business credit score of 23RED LIMITED, you can request a credit report. "As well as delivering record sales, we continued to invest for growth, deploying over £600m in stores and distribution centres across the UK. Hurley added: "We're continuing to gain even more customers - with over 60% of households shopping with Aldi in the last year. At the same time, the Total-Assets went up by 17.45%, or by -1384618. "By redefining the discount supermarket in the UK, creating more places and more ways to shop with us, we are excited to provide millions of new customers with access to Aldi's award-winning quality and unbeatable value." Aldi recently announced trials of a checkout-free concept store in London, UK. "This helped to create thousands of much-needed jobs and support for British farmers and manufacturers." In a separate development, Aldi has committed to investing £1.3bn ($1.8bn) over the next two years to aid its growth in the UK grocery market. There's no doubt that bricks and mortar is the focus for our business," Giles Hurley, the CEO of Aldi's business in Britain and Ireland, told reporters. Aldi and German rival Lidl have grown rapidly in Britain over the last decade, forcing the established big four across the UK, our stores are full and we'd encourage customers to shop as normal," he said. The CEO said nobody in the market could guarantee there would not be inflation this Christmas. "What I am able to guarantee is that customers will always get the lowest prices in Aldi irrespective of what the future holds.
