Justin Bieber

An idol is the last thing you would expect to find inside Justin Bieber. Nevertheless, all it takes is one listen to the 17 year-old soul-singing phenomenon to realize that he is light years ahead of his manufactured pop peers. After posting dozens of homemade videos on YouTube in 2007, where the multi-talented Bieber put his impossible spin on songs from artists like Usher, Hi-Yo and Shrek Wonder, Justin racked up over 10,000,000 views purely from word of mouth. "I started singing about three years ago," says the Canadian native who grew up as only child in Stratford, Ontario. "I entered a local singing competition called Stratford Idol. The other people in the competition had been taking singing lessons and had vocal coaches. I wasn't taking it too seriously at the time, I would just sing around the house. I was only 12 and I got second place." In an effort to share his victory with his loved ones, Justin began posting his performance footage online. "I put my singing videos from the competition on YouTube so that my friends and family could watch them," he says. "But it turned out that other people liked them and they started subscribing to them. That's how my manager found me. He saw me on YouTube and contacted my family and now I'm signed!" Seven months after Justin started posting his videos online, former So So Def marketing executive Scooter Braun flew the then 13-year old singer to Atlanta, GA to meet with his elite colleagues. As if Justin's natural singing talent wasn't enough to impress Scooter's inner circle, Braun knew Bieber was also a self-taught musician who plays the drums, guitar, piano and trumpet. "Right when we flew into Atlanta, Scooter drove us to the studio and Usher was there in the parking lot," remembers Bieber. "That was my first time ever being out of Canada so I went up to him and was like, 'Hey Usher, I love your songs, do you want me to

Eric, a famous violin player, became lost on a photographic expedition. For two days, he had walked through the jungle without food or water. He had walked over mountains and through rivers, carrying his violin case. Now, he was too tired and too hungry to walk any further. He came to a clearing in the jungle and sat down on a log. He decided to play his violin one more time.

As soon as he started playing, animals of all kinds began to gather around to listen to his music. While he played, more animals arrived. They came and sat quietly in front of him. Soon, there were birds, lions, hippopotamuses, zebras, snakes, elephants and even wild pigs listening to his wonderful music.

Eric did not stop playing. He played better than ever. The jungle was soon filled with the melodious sounds of his violin.

Then, a gigantic old crocodile crawled out of the river nearby. It walked into the clearing where Eric was playing. It looked at Eric. It looked at all the animals gathered around him.

Then, the huge crocodile opened its jaws wide and before he could be stopped, he gobbled up poor Eric – violin, case, and all with a loud slurp!

The other animals were furious!

"That music was the most beautiful thing I have ever heard," roared the lion. "Why did you eat him? We were all enjoying his music."

The old crocodile cupped his hands to his ears.

"What was that you said? I can't hear you! You'll have to speak up. I'm very deaf!"
